WARD'S

Patent Grapple.

THIS GRAPPLE WAS INVENTED BY

Moses N. Ward,

OF BANGOR,

And was patented December 8th, 1868.

IN STRENGTH, SIMPLICITY, and FACILITY OF USE, it is far superior to any thing of the kind ever invented.

Its wonderful ability to accept a ring of object to which it may be applied, is found in a great variety of logs, barrels, boxes and bales, and pulp bales.

No Mill, no Vessel, no Store, nor Store House, should be without it.

It is indispensable to every ship builder, and every wharf builder. In fact the Grapple is invaluable wherever there are heavy objects to be moved, and will soon pay for itself.

All persons interested in the use of the article, are invited to call and examine these instruments at the store of the manufacturers.

The Water Works.

To the Editor of the Daily Whig ...

SIR: ... On this tenth day of June, in the year of Grace, 1869, I have given in my ... sion and become a subscriber to the ... ject of the Bangor Water Company, ... proposes to cause the pure, ... Hat Case Pond, in the town of Dedham, to flow through our beautiful city, in the ... channels, like the arteries and veins of the human body.

This, sir, is no hasty step of mine; for I have stood as a silent observer of the enterprise, and a careful reader of all that has been written on the subject, till the present moment. Beyond my subscription for the use of the water, I have not a dollar invested in the enterprise; nor do I intend to invest in it any capital, and what I say, is for, or in favor of the undertaking, is entirely from this slow conviction of its value to our citizens.

In the first place, let it be distinctly noted and recollected, that Hat Case Pond is within the mountain inclosed as aforesaid, and the green hill-sides about it, and yet all up above all the impurities of the surrounding country. Yesterday, in company with a friend, I spent a good portion of the ... in rambling through the old forests ... ing upon its margin, or sitting down to rest where we could look out upon the tranquil surface; and we plainly saw, by the configuration of the region round about it, that whatever the population and business of the ... abolition of the country may become, ... anticipated growth of this portion of our State, every possible impurity ... ordered, must fall far below the level of the beautiful sheet of water. No cities, factories, no mills of any kind, not even a dwelling house or stable, can ever ... stand above it. No possible damage can ever taint it. We may mark this ... therefore, that Hat Case will forever ... above infection; and all day long, as I pondered along the hill-sides, surrounding it, I found myself unnecessarily repeating the graphic description of the British poet —

"While in, yet above the world."

But there is another consideration to be taken into our account in making up our opinion of this enterprise. The water ... this crystal lake is rain-water, ... abundance of springs; and the people in the near ... speak of it as entirely ... water. I know, who ... endeavored to expose ... reproach upon it, as being a spring ... rain-water." But the writer of that newspaper distributed proved himself, by the ... this slur, to be entirely destitute of the ... elements of a chemical education. Had he ever read a single work on chemistry he would have known that this intended sarcasm was the highest eulogy for every ... chemistry understands, that rain-water is the only pure water obtainable by man without artificial distillation.

When destitute of rain-water, the ... is compelled to distill every drop he ... in his laboratory, because of the impurity of all water taken out of wells and springs, and every house-wife, in a similar condition, has to purify the water she uses by the infusion of an alkali, or the employment of ashes. The water of some wells will perhaps ... purer than that of other wells and springs, but no absolutely pure spring-water, or pure well-water, has ever been discovered. In the very nature of the case, there can be no hope; for the water of all springs and wells is simply rain-water leeched through a greater or less portion of the earth's crust, and the crust of the earth is the great storehouse of all the vegetable and mineral poisons known to man. The water of our springs, the cool, clear fluid of our wells, is only water that has run through some portion of Nature's great apothecary's shop, and every time we drink a cup of the purest element that ever bubbled from a spring, or came brimming from the old moss-covered bucket of our wells, we are drinking, not pure sweet water, but a confusion of a thousand different, and contentious medicines. Take your cistern of rain-water, and shovel into it the contents of a small apothecary's store of drugs and medicines, and you will have, after giving it time to settle, ... men of the medicinal decoction which our wells and springs offer us to drink. Medicine is all right enough in its place, but it is far from wholesome to be taking medicine at every step.

This constant drugging of ... is rendered still more loathsome by the innumerable impurities, vegetable and animal, that leech through the soil from the surface of our dirty roads. Think, in a city of any size, of the sinks and vaults, of the stables and stills, of the tanneries and their ... tanks, of the scores of dirty lanes, ... stews—of everything filthy and disgusting, which we should blush to see imprinted, but the dregs of which are innocently drunk with every draft—and then tell me how you can relish the water of your ... springs, of your house hold wells, into which a portion of all these disreputable ... surely go, mixing themselves with the mineral and vegetable poisons already there, to make his witches' broth, like that in Macbeth, "slab and gobar"!

It is not so much the discreditable properties of our water, however, that force intelligent communities to provide themselves with a purer beverage, as the effects produced on the health and longevity of the population. Were it simply a matter of taste, or even of cleanliness, we might learn to get along with an impure, if not with an infected, element for ordinary ... But it has been proved to a demonstration, by the first medical authorities on earth, that the water of our wells and springs—the strongest issuing from the vast underground tanks ranks with all manner of poisons—is productive of a large proportion of diseases, malformations, ailments, miseries known to the human species. Not a population drinking lime-water—that is, spring-water, obtained through a lime-stone formation—and a large proportion of the people there will take on gravel, ossification of the heart and arteries, and similar excruciating maladies. Let them, on the other hand, make daily use of water passing through a sulphurous deposit; and they will suffer from depletion, attenuation, loss of weight and strength, till pale and trembling, they fall into quite a class of diseases leading on toward death. In the same way, every mineral, every production

FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, June 15.

The Secretary of the Interior has assented to the appointment as Indian Agents for the Central Department, the names of the following Friends:

Ogden Bond of Oskaloosa, Iowa, for the Neosho agency.

J D Miles of Walash, Indiana, for the Kickapoos

Jonathan Richards of Philadelphia, for the Pottawatamies.

Thomas Miller of Springfield, Ohio, for the Sacs and Foxes.

Nathan Stubbs of Kansas, for the Kansas Indians.

It is not true, as announced in a recent cable telegram, that in an official communication Minister Motley intimated that the American Administration condoned in the reasons which led the Senate to reject the Alabama treaty. Such was not the tenor of the instructions concerning his intercourse with Her Majesty's Government, and it is not, therefore, considered probable that he would make that assertion. It is, however, certain that he was instructed to explain the circumstances attending the rejection of the treaty, without committing this government to any line of policy; but at the same time, standing by the rejection of the treaty.

Mr. Motley in reality tendered a new proposition for the settlement of claims; but to say that in view of the irritation in England owing to the rejection of the treaty, the present is not an auspicious time to propose the reopening of negotiations. In other words, the temporary rejection of the question is desirable, with the hope that when the excitement shall subside, Her Majesty's Government will be disposed to the reopening of negotiations. He is not authorized to announce the position of our Government to be in any way pledged on that subject, nor to demand a payment of the amount of damages, national or individual, but to assure Her Majesty's Government of the sincere desire of our own to have all matters of dispute adjusted on terms honorable and satisfactory to both nations.

Another point in instructions is to the effect that the most prominent declaring the rebels entitled to belligerent rights not in itself cause for demanding damages, but this, taken in connection with subsequents, was unfriendly, and showed a spirit of hostility against the United States on the part of Great Britain during the late war, and failing to indicate which reparation.

The instructions were prepared at the Department of State about ten days before Minister Motley left the country, having been slightly modified, at the instance of General Grant himself, they were carefully considered by the Cabinet, to which they were acceptable, and were sent thereafter handed to Mr. Motley without further amendment.

The only special instruction to Mr Motley as to treaty negotiations are with reference to naturalization and consul, and it is supposed that by this time he has entered upon that duty.

The State Department is advised that Mr Worthington, U S Consul at Uruguay, had demanded of the Argentine Government the arrest through its lines of permission for a U S vessel to pass through them to communicate with Montevideo. Both were refused on the ground that they could not then be granted without all changes proposed hostile movements. Consul to take place. A sharp correspondence has taken place on the subject.

None of the bids for Custom Houses opened yesterday were accepted, on account of being under the appraised value. The monitors are still in the market, and bids will be received for them at the Bureau of Construction and repairs at any time.

The Great National Peace Jubilee.

BOSTON, June 15

The inauguration of the great National Peace Jubilee, took place shortly after three P M, today. Rev E E Hale asked the divine blessing, closing with the Lord's Prayer. Mayor Gaston delivered the welcome address.

Hon. A. H. Rice followed the Mayor as orator of the day.

Admiral Farragut, Commodore Boyer and other veteran naval officers were escorted to the coliseum by the Union Navy Association.

Many other distinguished people, including Mrs Harrison Grey Otis, Parepa and Ole Bull, were cordially greeted by both performers and spectators in the vast building.

The chorus and instrumental performers numbered from 10 to twelve thousand and the audience probably twenty-five thousand.

Notwithstanding the heavy shower during the forenoon and the continued threatening weather, full one half the population of Boston were in the streets. The view of the balcony is quite beyond description. Nothing like it was ever seen on this continent. The view embraced about three and a half acres of faces.

The first piece on the programme being the grand choral, "A Strong Castle is our Lord" was sung by the full chorus with the grand orchestra and organ, under the direction of Mr. Gilmore. The chorus comprised ten thousand voices, the orchestra eleven hundred instruments, which, combined with the swelling notes of the organ, completely filled the building, the rendering of the vocal selection by the chorus being as distinct and clear to the audience as if only given by a choir or chorus, excepting that the volume exceeded anything ever before heard. At the close, the audience testified its appreciation in a long and continued round of applause.

The overture, "Tannhauser" by a select orchestra of six hundred musicians, was then performed under the direction of Julius Eichberg. It was the first properly instrumental performance, and was carefully and thoroughly performed, its finer strains being plainly heard in all their inflections in all parts of the building. It was a contested success, eliciting rounds of applause.

"Ave Maria" was sung by Parepa, whose appearance was greeted with simultaneous applause from audience and performers.

The violin obligate was by two hundred violins led by Ole Bull, under the direction of Gilmore.

The solo by Parepa was heard in all parts of the building.

The next was the "Star Spangled Banner," under direction of Mr Gilmore. This introduced the whole chorus, organ, entire force of musicians, with the chiming of church bells and artillery. This was one of the great features of the day and was a grand success. The audience after joining in the chorus of the last verse, rose en masse in a state of high patriotic excitement, and it was repeated with renewed energy and harmony, closing with another outburst of enthusiasm.

After the intermission the Hymn of Peace by Dr. Holmes, to the music of Keller's American Hymn, was sung by the whole chorus, and was enthusiastically encored.

The National air, "My Country 'tis of Thee," was the last piece. It was sung by the whole chorus with all the accompaniments of organ, drum, chimes and artillery. It was the crowning success of the day. The audience stood on the seats, huzzahed and made most extraordinary demonstrations and the last verse was repeated, the whole mass joining. On conclusion, Mr. Gilmore was greeted with repeated cheers, both from audience and performers. Soon after, the building was vacated. Every person was loud in praise of the success of inauguration day of the Grand Peace Jubilee.

The indications are that the coliseum will be crowded all the week.

A joint committee of the Legislature will receive President Grant to-morrow at half past ten at the St. James Hotel, and under the escort of a company of cavalry, accompany him to the State House, where he will be officially received by the Governor and Legislative bodies. He will review the State militia and afterwards become the guest of the city authorities, visiting the coliseum in the afternoon.

NEW YORK, June 15.

Gen. Dix was a passenger on the Canada, which arrived last night.

Reports say that another Cuban expedition numbering 500 men will leave here in 48 hours.

Thomas Murphy, third mate of the ship Foster, has been convicted of beating one of the crew, who subsequently died.

James Glynn, the carpenter, was again tried and convicted on two more counts in the indictment against him.

Important Decision

ATLANTA, Ga., June 14.

In the Supreme Court of Georgia today a decision that negroes are eligible to office in that State was rendered, Judge Warner dissenting.

Cuban Affairs

WASHINGTON, June 15.

Intelligence has been received here from Cuban sources of the fight which took place between the revolutionary forces and the Spanish troops, near Fogrito del Indio. The Cuban troops, numbering 2000, were attacked in their entrenchments by the Spaniards with a force nearly double that number, and were twice repulsed. The loss of the Cubans was less than one hundred in killed and wounded, while that of the attacking party was three times as great.

The Spaniards retreated, leaving a number of their killed and wounded on the field.

The result of this battle has had an encouraging effect upon the Cuban army, which is reported to be gaining strength every day from the very best portion of the people of the Island.

A number of recruits, mostly from Virginia, left here yesterday in 1 boat for join the force which is now hovering on the southern coast, preparing to join the Cuban army.

Practical Advice

The Brunswick Telegraph says that Mr. Crosby, in lecturing upon fractures, gave a bit of practical advice, that it may be well to repeat. He said that the accidents almost always occur away from home and the first question was how to get the patient home with the least possible ill comfort to him. The oldest method was by a stretcher, very readily constructed. But if borne upon a stretcher, the bearers must break step, not keep step. Keeping step would give a swinging movement to the stretcher that would terribly annoy the patient. If the party borne had a broken leg, it would greatly relieve him, if a third pair on would take the leg in his hands and keep it gently extended all the time, of course receiving his step by that of the bearers. The extension of the limb would prevent the jagged end of the broken bone from being thrust into the soft parts, to the great distress of the patient.

The Hon E George Squier has addressed a note to the President, calling upon him to recognize the belligerent right of the Cuban Republic, on the following reasons:

1st—Because they constitute the vast majority of the native population, which is black, of which the Spanish company has purchased and will enlarge. Between Forest city and Vancebore upon the lake they will run a small steamer, which can also tow the usual river boat that supply the trade, for the purpose of towing barges of hay and transporting passengers. By this means they will be able to reach enough country to supply their wants for a great many years to come at a very low rate. Vanceboro is destined to be quite a place.

—Lewiston is getting up a Fourth of July celebration and hopes to attract 20,000 people there.

SAIL BUILDING. The Bath Times is pleased to note the ship yards in that place are resuming their accustomed activity and that more than an average amount of shipping will be built this season.—Several large vessels have already been launched and others are in progress.

MAINE BIBLE SOCIETY. The Portland Press says the annual meeting of the Maine Bible Society took place at the First Parish Church, Sunday evening, Rev. Dr. Shailer, the President, presiding. The annual report was read. Able and eloquent addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Fox, of the Hammond street Church, Bangor, Rev. J. W. Cattenring, Jr., son of the late pastor of the High street Church in Portland; Rev. Mr. Small of the Free st. Baptist Church, and Rev. S. H. Merrill, of the Congregational Church.

—An insane man was taken from the cars at Utica, N. Y., on Friday evening. He said his name was C. C. Jordan, that he was on his way to Boston to attend a funeral, and that he had a daughter living near Rockland, Maine. He will be kept in the poor house at Utica until friends can be heard from.

THE VIXEN IN LEWISTON. The Lewiston Journal says that in the past few months Mr. J. P. Langley, hardware dealer, has missed from his store, tools, &c., from his shop and has been unable till recently to discover the thieves. Recent developments have given him the clue to the persons employed in workmen's nights shop—One of the accused Hyde not long since left his service and Sarah Lamb, living on Howard hill, had been employed at Mr. Langley's. Search was made at the house of Sarah Lamb, and placed in a trunk in the third story for the night, which he managed to make his escape by breaking up the boards, making a hole with them and letting himself down to the ground. He has not been arrested. He confessed the crime. At the same time another former workman named Hodgdon was arrested on suspicion, and had undoubtedly been working, and had undoubtedly implicated the other two. Mr. Langley, Edward C. Brackett, a watchman for Mr. Langley, was also arrested. The two latter plead guilty. Some of the tools stolen from Mr. Langley's establishment have been found in Lewiston, some in Auburn, and some in Portland.

—On Tuesday last there was shipped by the Houlton Branch Railway, Tabbus's store the construction of the road, and also the Lumbering Co. another bill between St. Croix river, Nelson Castle and St. Stephen, N. B., over the Piers.

—The Lewiston Journal understands the Cushing of the Bowdoinham Bank will have a settlement by the absconding bank officer who is now mourning at Thomaston in charge of Warden Rice, very dangerously ill. It is thought he has never fully recovered from the injuries inflicted by him at the hands of the robber.

—Messrs. Gardner, T. T. Donnell & Lothrop manufacture annually $150,000 worth of carriages at their factory in this city—They are now building a new engine of 70 h. p. power, with a view to correspond —The Moose River correspondent of the Skowhegan Reporter says that many of the lumbermen employed in driving on Moose River came up from the Kennebec, between Lath and Wood ponds. "Elephant, weight over 2 lbs., 2.

It is believed to avoid great deal of trouble. Elephant riders who frequent the road for don't have to ask the price.

—The Wiscasset Oracle says the length of the railroad bridge from the foot of Main street to Clark Point will be, when completed, 4150 feet, or about a mile and a quarter. The total length of the bridging from Point Love to Clark's Point will be 8,000 feet, or a little over a mile and a half. About two thirds of the piling has already been driven and capped.

—The Moose River correspondent of the Somerset Reporter states that arrangements have been made by the United States and Canadian governments from Skowhegan to Quebec, via Moose River, commencing the 1st inst. The Canadian Government run their mail three times per week which is sent by express, pending [illegible] on this side of the line twice a week.

—A very large part of the property of John Foster of Wesley, has been on exhibition in Machias for a few days past. They were purchased by Wm. H. Hemenway, Esq., of Machias. Their weight on Tuesday last was 5852 pounds, one weighing 2542 pound, the other 2570. They are nine years old, and Republicans.

SAD STORY OF A MAINE MAN. We copy the following painful account of the misfortune which has befallen a former resident of this State from a California paper:

District Judge St phen Henry Chase, of Esmeralda county, has been declared insane and taken to the Insane Asylum at Stockton. Mr Chase was a native of Bryant, Oxford county, and has the reputation of being a brilliant lawyer and politician twenty-five years ago. He was President of the Senate of Maine in 1847, was the next year a candidate for Congress in his district and being defeated in obtaining the nomination he sought, started for California around the Horn, where he arrived early in 1849. He settled in Nevada county, Cal., where he accumulated what is usually called a competency, returned to the East, married and came back to his golden home, bringing with him his wife, who, being a child or luxury, shortly after became insane—her insanity being supposed to have been superinduced by the contrast her previous life had afforded.—Mr. Chase took his wife back to the East, placed her in an insane asylum, where she shortly after expired. Mr. Chase returned to Nevada county, where he resumed the practice of the law. He was elected a State Senator from that county for one term when he removed to Aurora on the discovery of the silver mines there. On the organization of Nevada as a State he was elected District Judge, which position he has since held. He was possessed of a clear, legal mind and a brilliant intellect. He made one of the most effective and logical speeches delivered in Nevada during the last Presidential campaign. He was a brilliant conversationalist and beloved by a large number of friends. But at times a settled melancholy took possession of him, which many thought the early loss of his wife produced. And at last the same malady which carried her away seized on him.

The old piece of bombast about a "bull on a railroad track" will have to be modified. It has always been represented that the bull was "chawed up," while the train swept along smoothly and triumphantly. But this was not exemplified in the late Baltimore railroad accident—which came near depriving us of a President and a Cabinet officer. In this case the bull, or rather the cow—for the animal that caused the accident did not rise to the dignity of bull-hip—forced by enough, but the railroad train got the worst of it, for the spectacle of a dead cow is not appalling, that of a train when the cars are whirled round and round to piece, while the passengers are hurled from their seats and dashed lightly against Railroad people have, doubtless been [illegible] on, for a ball on a railroad track, but Excelsior, they have [illegible] things that [illegible]

A LEGEND OF THE BLACK HALL ...

CHAPTER ...

THE DARKNESS OF ... HEARTS

"Their love w... That burns in ...

The gentleman ... in off and his party as Mr. ... ...rners of Black Hall, Virgi... ...vants.

"We shall need a private parlor and chamber communicating for our own use, and a couple of bedrooms for our servants," said Mr. Berners, as he handed the hat and cane to the bowing waiter.

"Certainly, sir. What would you like for tea?" asked the landlord.

"Oh, anything you please, so that it is neat and neatly served," said Mr. Berners, with a slightly impatient wave of his hand as if he would have been rid of his obsequious host.

"Ah-ah! anything I please! It is easy to see what kind of a ... he lives upon love just now; but he'll care more about his bill of fare a few weeks hence," chuckled the landlord, as he left the public parlor to execute his guests' orders.

The bridegroom was no sooner left alone with his bride than he seated her in the easiest arm-chair, and began, with affectionate zeal to untie her bonnet-strings and unclasp her mantle.

"You make my maid a useless appendage, dear Lyon, said the little lady, starting up in his arms. "You love me so much, then, dear Lyon?"

"Yet not too much I hope, love, for if you should ever cease to love me, or even if you were ever to love me less, I—I dare not think what I should do!" she muttered in a long, deep, shuddering tone.

"Why, Sybil, my wife—you beautiful and creature! You are a true daughter of your house! A Berners of the burning heart! A Berners of the boiling blood! A Berners of whom it has been said that it is almost as fatal to be loved as to be hated by—"

Suddenly in the midst of their converse they heard the sound of weeping—low, deep, heart-broken weeping.

Both paused, looked at each other, and listened.

The sound seemed to come from a room on the opposite side of the passage to their own apartment.

"What is that?" inquired Sybil, looking up to her husband's face.

"It seems to be some woman in distress," answered Lyon.

"Oh I see what it is, dear, will you?" entreated Sybil.

She was herself so happy, that it was really dreadful to be reminded just then that sorrow should exist in this world of all.

But if she could have foreseen the woe that was to come to herself, to her husband, and to the object of her sympathy, she would have bold Lyon back, as with the grip of fate, from the mission on which she now sent him.

For the weeper was a beautiful woman—a deserted wife—named ... who, although but a few ... the vessel which had ... Liverpool, had been robbe... and money by her husband ... to her fate in that Necrolis ...

Sybil was deeply moved ... story, and insisted on taki... delle home with her ... Mr. Berners gave his ass...

But before they got ... their journey, Sybil did ... the arrangement. Mrs. ... enthusiastically lovely, that ... once began to yield to ... Sybil, for the first ti... homage of admiration to ... her own.

This kindled the fires of ... heart, and by the time the ... Hall, those fires had beco... an inextinguishable flame.

And so Berners had ... to forgive no object of ...

Black Hall, the abode of ... Berners, was a palatial ... sion, situated in the heart ... Valley, a few miles from ... county town. It had been ... seat of nobility for generation ... nowned for the seemingly ... pitality which had its sp... roof.

Mrs. Berners, the last of her race, to give vent to the emotions of her restless, restless heart, resolved to reinaugurate the festivities of the olden time, and for that purpose announced a masked ball for the ensuing All-Hallow Eve, and at once set about getting all things in readiness.

One day while she was absent at Blackville, making purchases, Lyon and Rose became so absorbed in one another, as to become oblivious of the entry of Mrs. Winlorose, the old housekeeper, who found them sitting closely side by side, her hand clasped in his. Old Sybil's nature, the old housekeeper described this scene to her with many exaggerations. The revelation seemed to freeze Sybil into ice.

"Oh, my heart! my heart!" she moaned, turning deathly pale. And then, after a long silence, she bitterly added, "Deceived! Betrayed! Scorned! Laughed at! Well, well," she continued, nodding grimly; "well, well, stand face to face as is the fashion of the day, I too will be the fashion; I too will wear a mask of smiles! But behind that mask, I will watch!—Oh, how I will watch! Not at my fancy ball alone will I play a part, but before, after, and, perhaps, during it, Rose shall ever know how I watch, what I see, until I descend with the fell swoop of the eagle, and bequeath to her remembrance that I am a daughter of the house of Berners, who never failed a friend or spared a foe. And oh, let the spirit of my fathers support me, for I must, must be AVENGED!"

And oh! could those stiffen with sacred love—those wanderers on the brink of a fearful abyss—have seen the look of her face then, they would have fled from such other for ever, rather than to have dared the desperation of her ruined soul.

But they saw nothing, knew nothing, suspected nothing!

And thus all the three drifted towards the awful brink of ruin.

CHAPTER II.

THE FIRST FATAL HALLOW EVE.

It was All-Hallow Eve, a night long anticipated with delight by the whole neighborhood, and much longer still remembered with horror by the whole community.

It was the occasion of Sybil Berners' mask ball at Black Hall, the Black Valley, and the town of Blackville were all in a state of unprecedented excitement; for this was the first entertainment of the kind that had ever been given in the locality; and the gentry of three contiguous counties had been invited to assist at it.

The throng at Black Hall was great, and the characters assumed by the maskers were various and well sustained.

But far the most beautiful, far the most terrible figure in the pageantry of the evening, was that of Sybil Berners! She had chosen for her character the unprecedented part of the impersonation of the Spirit of Fire. It suited well with her whole nature. Her welcome was but the outward sign of the inward fervor.

Sybil had confided the secret of her costume to no one but her husband, who was himself attired as "Harold the Saxon," while Mrs. Blondelle assumed the character of "Edith the Fair."

Sybil had not been long in the room before the coquetting of her husband and Mrs. Blondelle drove her nearly to distraction. Observing that whenever she came near them, they were on their guard, Sybil exchanged disguises with one of her guests and intimate friends, Beatrix Pendleton, and was thus enabled to watch her husband and his companion without the least restraint.

Sybil observed that a masker, representing Death, whom nobody seemed to know watched Mrs. Blondelle's every movement; and she did heedfully, and she subsequently had occasion to remember that fact.
